Cops: Customer punches Starbucks barista in face

A 41-year-old Dorchester man allegedly punched a Starbucks barista in the face because his order was incorrect, police said.

Officers were called to the South Boston Starbucks on West Broadway just before 9 a.m. Monday. When they arrived they found the barista applying ice to his injury. He told officers that the suspect approached him and said "What the [expletive] did you give me last time? That wasn't tea," police said. METRO

Bulger files appeal

Attorneys for convicted Boston mobster James "Whitey" Bulger, who last week was handed two life sentences for murder and other charges, filed an appeal Wednesday in federal court. In August, a jury found Bulger guilty on most of the charges in the indictment against him, including 11 of the 19 murders he was accused of. In addition to the life sentences, he also was ordered to pay $19.5 million in restitution to all 19 families. It is likely that attorney Hank Brennan will lead the appeal. METRO

Accused sex offender offers castration for less jail time

Deal offered. John Burbine is accused of abusing 13 children, including newborns.

While a judge on Wednesday denied an accused child sex offender's offer to undergo castration in exchange for a reduced jail sentence, the man's lawyer has not ruled out the possibility of bringing up the issue again.

Attorney William Barabino said a judge denied his motion without prejudice, meaning it can be brought up again, likely at a potential sentencing hearing.

"The judge left an opening here and I appreciate what she's done," Barabino said in a telephone interview after Wednesday's hearing in Middlesex Superior Court.

Barabino represents John Burbine of Wakefield. The 50-year-old is accused of sexually abusing more than a dozen children.

Barabino said he first brought the idea to Burbine who then supported it. If found guilty, Burbine will likely end up spending the rest of his life in jail.

Burbine would only go through with the castration if he is able to get a "massive" reduction in sentence, said Barabino, who suggested a 15-year sentence with the castration.

"We have an obligation to make sure we exhaust every avenue other than trial, especially given the nature of the evidence," Barabino said.

Prosecutors did not agree to the offer, Barabino said.

Barabino also said he plans to file a detailed motion to request funds to have Burbine examined by a mental health expert.

'Troubling' case

The charges facing Burbine

Burbine was arrested last year after he was charged in a 100-count indictment for the abuse of children.

Authorities said the 50-year-old raped and assaulted 13 boys and girls between the ages of 8 days and 3 1/2 years old.

Authorities also said he had access to the children through an illegal day care center operated by his wife, and recorded the assaults.

At his arraignment in December, Burbine pleaded not guilty.

Following the charges, then-Middlesex District Attorney Gerry Leone called the case "among the most troubling and disturbing" child abuse cases ever prosecuted in the county.

Beagle taken from MSPCA is returned

The MSPCA released this surveillance photo of the suspect. / MSPCA

Police plan to charge a man caught on surveillance cameras stealing a beagle from an MSPCA shelter in Methuen after he returned the dog Wednesday morning.

Neither Methuen police nor the MSPCA would identify the man who allegedly took Sophie, a 7-year-old beagle, from Nevins Farm on Saturday.

Officials said the man would eventually be charged with larceny.

Quoted

"She's well. She's fine. She's under lock and key."

Rob Halpin
MSPCA spokesman

Rob Halpin, a spokesman for the MSPCA, said Sophie was returned Wednesday morning and is doing fine.

"She's well. She's fine. She's under lock and key," Halpin said.

He said it was unclear why the man, who was seen sneaking out the back door of the facility with the dog and accompanied by a woman, took Sophie.

"It's very hard to find out what motivates people to do that. There wasn't a coherent explanation," he said.

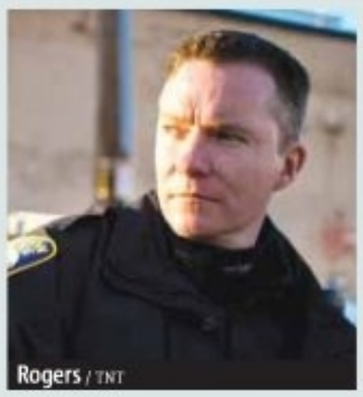
Untimely death

'Boston's Finest' officer takes his own life

A Boston Police officer who starred on the reality show "Boston's Finest" died Tuesday of an apparent suicide.

The docudrama, produced by Dorchester native Donnie Wahlberg, first debuted in February. According to producers, the reality show takes an "up-close and very personal" look at officers in one of the oldest police departments in the nation, the Boston Police Department.



Rogers / TNT

The deceased officer was identified as Patrick Rogers, a Dorchester native who had been with BPD for eight years.

"I am so deeply saddened tonight. My thoughts and prayers go out to a fallen brother of The Boston Police Dept.," Wahlberg tweeted Tuesday night.

Boston Police said the "unfortunate death of a member of the department," was being investigated as a "non-homicide."

A private screening of the second season was set for Tuesday night at the Revere Hotel, but the event was cancelled. MORGAN ROUSSEAU

Recovery stories get dramatic

Transitions. The writings of five Cambridge men recovering from addiction have been turned into theater.

A group of Cambridge men are sharing their stories of love, loss, addiction and recovery this weekend in a theater production that aims to open the community's eyes to the plight of the homeless community.

"Transitions," a show consisting of essays, poetry, songs and dance, is based on the writings of five men in a residential sobriety treatment program at the Salvation Army.

"People assume when they hear the word 'homeless' that addiction is part of it," said Misch Whitaker, the show's creator/director.

The writings were compiled from a year's worth of writing workshops that aimed at providing a voice for the men, as well as an outlet for healing. Whitaker said her decision to put on the stage production was inspired by her years working as a nurse for Boston Healthcare for the Homeless.

"They have survived things that would kill anyone else. I feel these stories need to be shared," she said.

Though some are stories of struggle, the show's music director, Marissa Wahkuna Campbell, said there are many positive messages.

"No matter how deep you are in your own hole, there is always help available. It is inspirational. There are raw parts, but there are also funny moments, and stories of love."

"Transitions" opens Friday at Green Street Studios in Central Square. Get tickets at www.storieswithoutroofs.org.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan.rousseau@metro.us

Creating a dialogue

Whitaker said she hopes the production helps the authors have a better understanding of where they came from, so they have a better grasp of where they're going next.

- She also hopes to make the community think twice about the people they pass on the street. "I hope they don't walk by these (homeless) strangers and make up a story about them in their head. Every story is surprisingly familiar. I hope everyone who comes in contact with this project is inspired into a dialogue about what makes a community," Whitaker said.

Weight Loss Research Study

Right now, doctors at both Boston Medical Center and Brigham & Women's Hospital are accepting participants for a new weight loss research study. If you are overweight and between the ages of 21 - 65, you may qualify to participate.

The study is for a reversible, minimally-invasive investigational weight loss procedure designed to reduce the calories absorbed after a meal. The study also includes a comprehensive weight loss support program.

There is no cost to participate, and study-related care will be overseen by a team of weight loss specialists.

Artist behind 2007 bomb scare hired for First Night show

New beginnings. Artist Peter "Zebbler" Berdovsky is creating an electronic piece for Boston's New Year's Eve celebration.

Berdovsky / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

A new year means a new chance for a local artist behind the 2007 Mooninite marketing stunt that prompted a citywide bomb scare: He has been contracted to create a $50,000 electronic centerpiece for Boston's 2014 First Night celebrations.

Peter "Zebbler" Berdovsky will stage the pricey light show with the blessing of Mayor Thomas Menino, who in 2007 described the stunt as "outrageous," "irresponsible" and "unacceptable."

"I'm honored to have a chance to pay back to the city of Boston through my projection and light art. This will hopefully give everyone a chance to celebrate our unity. We are a great city. Let's remember that, and be unified in our voice," Berdovsky told the Boston Herald.

The stunt was meant to promote the movie "Aqua Teen Hunger Force," and consisted of 40 battery-powered LED placards resembling the show's characters flipping their middle fingers.

The placards were hung around the city, initially causing confusion and concern. Roads, bridges and public transit were shut down while authorities tried to make sense of the lights; they eventually realized it was part of a publicity stunt.

Berdovsky and another man were initially charged with placing a hoax device in a way that causes panic and disorderly conduct; however, the charges were dropped when the pair agreed to community service and offered a public apology.

Menino spokesman John Guilfoil told the Herald, "The mayor is confident in the choice of artists and the program selections for the evening. He is confident it will be a wonderful First Night, and a memorable night for all."

Politics. It allowed Obama and Clinton to warm a relationship that has seen its share of strains.

President Barack Obama joined forces with Bill and Hillary Clinton on Wednesday to recognize the legacy of John F. Kennedy, the president who inspired a generation until he was felled by an assassin's bullets 50 years ago this week.

Obama awarded the highest U.S. civilian honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, to former President Clinton and 15 other Americans who have made significant contributions to U.S. culture, politics, sports and science.

The event was intended as a testament to the memory of Kennedy, who signed an executive order shortly before his death creating the Presidential Medal of Freedom. Kennedy also established the Peace Corps and set the country on a path to landing humans on the moon.

After the event in a packed White House East Room, Obama, Clinton and his wife, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, paid homage to Kennedy in a visit to his Arlington National Cemetery grave.

The day was steeped in powerful political imagery as Obama and the Clintons appeared together against a backdrop of speculation that Hillary Clinton may be laying the groundwork for a run for the Democratic presidential nomination in 2016. REUTERS

Obamacare. Early data show older people more likely to sign up

More older Americans than young adults so far have signed up for new insurance coverage under the state marketplaces created by President Barack Obama's health care law, according to early data from four states reporting details on their enrollment.

The age balance is being closely watched to determine the financial stability of the insurance market created by the Affordable Care Act, as the participation of younger people is needed to offset costs for sicker beneficiaries. To ensure that younger people sign up, the law requires individuals to pay a penalty if they do not have health coverage. REUTERS

Florida congressman gets year's probation on cocaine charge

Prison. If he had been caught in Florida buying an equal amount he could have faced felony charges.

Freshman Rep. Trey Radel, R-Fla / GETTY IMAGES

Florida Congressman Henry "Trey" Radel pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of possession of cocaine in D.C. Superior Court on Wednesday and was sentenced to one year of probation.

Radel, 37, a Republican who was elected to the House of Representatives last year with the backing of the Tea Party movement, was charged after buying 3.5 grams of cocaine in Washington's Dupont Circle neighborhood on Oct. 29 in the presence of an undercover agent, the government said.

"Your honor, I apologize for what I've done," Radel told Judge Robert Tignor during the sentencing hearing. In an earlier statement, Radel said his "struggles with alcoholism" had led him to make an "extremely irresponsible choice."

The case against Radel stemmed from an investigation by Federal Bureau of Investigation and Drug Enforcement Administration agents into cocaine trafficking in the Washington area, Assistant U.S. Attorney Nihar Mohanty said. REUTERS

"I am so sorry to be here. I know I have let my constituents down, my country down and, most importantly, my family, including my wife and my 2-year-old, who doesn't know it yet."

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the 14th installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 14: Temp makes lemonade from lemons

OK, the nice thing about being a temp is that if you screw up, you leave; but you were going to leave anyway, so it's no big deal. I suppose this is true for anybody with a job, but for temps it's just more out in the open.

After almost no sleep I arrived at work only to find gossip and fear mongering. The worst gossip was that Danimal was in a coma, when, in fact, he was in a $20,000-a-day hotel with a slightly collapsed left lung and an unhelpful feeling-sorry-for-himself attitude.

Sarah No. 1 walked up to me at my desk and said, "I guess we were all behaving badly yesterday."

I was incensed: "I was doing no such thing! I was there just to listen to Dan vent about the warehouse fire! You're the one who got a room."

Sarah winked at me: "Have it your way. Here's a pile of files that need alphabetizing."

Ugh. I decided my day desperately needed some

There's been an explosion of cute! Little puppies can make any bad day for Shannon a little bit more tolerable. / ZOONAR cheer, so I phoned my sister's friend who breeds golden labs. We had a quick chat, and just before lunchtime, she arrived with two blue plastic storage tubs filled with puppies.

I ushered her into the admin area. In a loud, crisp voice I shouted, "Oh no! There's been an explosion!"

Everyone looked stunned.

"That's right — an explosion of cute! Hilda, release the hounds!"

Ahhh, the puppy bomb — is there any greater experience in life? Eighteen chubby bundles of YouTube-able, romping joy demanding nothing except unconditional love — and snacks.

Everybody got down on the floor, and it took only a minute for people to learn that the person with the most food is the one who gets the most puppies, so in came the lunch bags. I was proud to have brought even the smallest dab of joy to the otherwise dreary lives of the soon-to-be-fired, full-time staff. Yes, I was proud of myself for firmly turning the day around.

The icing on the cake? Outside the building there was a zombie walk with about 200 kids, dressed in their finest living dead, headed to a political protest starting outside AmQex next door.

And that's when two things happened: A massive bus, like Bon Jovi on tour, pulled into the parking lot and 50 Chinese people emerged holding measuring tapes, string and clip boards. Then half a minute later about 20 cops arrived to shut down the AmQex protest. "They make engine parts for drones," whispered Sarah.

The Chinese delegate's leader said, "I am most curious to see how protesters are handled in your country."

"I honestly believe that a certificate from Boston University holds great weight, because the standards are much higher. The attorneys who taught our classes were extremely knowledgeable about their specific areas of law. I made some connections among the faculty, broadened my understanding of law, and gained a better footing in my field."

Big news in babies and matrimony

A lot's shaking this week in babies and engagements, friends!

First up is Kelly Clarkson, who wasn't joking when she said she was planning to get started on a family as soon as possible after marrying Brandon Blackstock last month. The singer took to Twitter with some very big news: "I'm pregnant! Brandon and I are so excited! Best early Christmas present ever," she wrote. And if she has her way, the baby will be wearing pink. "I'm totally gonna have a girl. I'm manifesting it! And when I have a girl, you're gonna be like, 'That chick knew it!,'" she gushed to Parade.

Meanwhile, on the less exclamation-point-use front, "Once Upon a Time" co-stars Ginnifer Goodwin (Snow White) and Josh Dallas (Prince Charming) confirmed they are expecting a little prince or princess of their own. It is not known if Goodwin's pregnancy will be worked into the plot of the show. Chris Hemsworth and wife Elsa Pataky also announced that they are expecting their second child together, Hemsworth's rep confirms. Baby joins big sister India, who was born in 2012.

And finally, there is no fetus between Adam Brody and Leighton Meester, but there is an engagement ring, according to Star magazine. "It was the surprise of her life and she's ecstatic," a source says about Brody's proposal (surprise is right; I had no idea they were even dating). "Right now their plan is to get married next summer. They are still deciding if they want a destination wedding or if they'll marry in southern California somewhere." How "O.C." of them!

"Once Upon a Time," these two co-stars were expecting a baby. And actually, that time is now. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

ICYMI: 'Sexiest Man Alive' is Adam Levine

Just in case you haven't heard — and there is probably no way you haven't — Maroon 5 frontman Adam Levine has been voted People magazine's Sexiest Man Alive. "As a musician, you have fantasies that you want to win Grammys, but I didn't really think that this was on the table," the singer told People for its upcoming issue.

"I was just amazed and stunned and it almost seemed like they were kidding, but they weren't, so that's cool."

That IS cool, Adam. But you will never beat 1989's Sexiest Man, Sean Connery. Sorry, all you Movember people out there. You will never beat this 'stache (however, if you think you can, be sure to post a photo on Facebook or Twitter using the hashtag #MetroStache from now until Nov. 30).

CHRIS PRATT

The "Delivery Man" co-star gets his comedy from "a place of hopelessness."

MISERY CAN BE A GOLD MINE

Chris Pratt has become something of an incredible growing-and-shrinking machine lately, getting superbuff for "Zero Dark Thirty" and then impressively out-of-shape for his latest, "Delivery Man," in which he co-stars as Vince Vaughn's pessimistic friend and hapless attorney. And after that, he got into superhero form for next year's Marvel spectacle "Guardians of the Galaxy." But Pratt is OK with the misery, as long as it keeps audiences laughing.

You had all the best lines in the movie.
Vince's character comes from such a hopeful place, but I think maybe the best comedy comes from a place of hopelessness, and that's where my character is at. He's just a sad, miserable type of guy, and that's where you mine the best comedy. I think to me, that's the ultimate accomplishment in acting — to be in a place of such utter pain but people find it hilarious. But hopefully not all of my pain is funny. Like, the only pain that's funny is the pain that doesn't really hurt. If a brick falls on someone's head and then their brains fall out and they die, you're not going to laugh.

All four of his kids looked about the same age.
Yeah, we were busy. There was a whole backstory I came up with, where [he and his wife] met in law school, she got a really great job that brought us to Brooklyn and had one kid. I was like, "I'm a progressive man, I can handle being a stay-at-home dad." And then next thing you know, four years later we have four kids, the passion's gone, I've gained weight and she's sleeping with one of her partners.

It's the classic story, but the genders are reversed. It's like what so many men since the '50s have been doing to these poor mothers: getting them pregnant, saddling them with the responsibility of child-rearing and then going off and sleeping with someone better-looking and younger. Then they're stuck. They can't disappear, they've got these f—ing kids to feed.

How often do you put that much work into a character's backstory?
For this movie, I felt like the backstory was really important. I wanted to focus on backstory and I wanted to do this physical transformation to get into it. It was something totally different for me.

NED EHRBAR

Keeping promises

You've been doing a lot of physical transformations lately.
That's right. I am my own superhero — I can gain and lose weight. [Laughs] I worked really hard for a long time, ate the right things. I said I would do it and I did it. Something makes you feel really good about that.

Changes in your vision such as difficulty in driving, halos around lights or even the need for reading glasses could mean your vision is being affected by cataracts. It's important to know you have options. At New England Eye Center, we now offer the option of Laser Cataract Surgery with the Catalys® Precision Laser System. The powerful combination of our advanced lens implant options and Laser Cataract Surgery means we can provide near, intermediate and distance vision, and treat your astigmatism at the same time.

ADMIT ONE

Metro rounds up what's in cinemas this week.

Don't forget Donald Sutherland and Philip Seymour Hoffman are also in "Catching Fire." / MURRAY CLOSE

2 'Delivery Man'
The French-language Canadian dramedy "Starbuck" is getting remakes both here and in France. Vince Vaughn takes the reins as a serial sperm donor who meets the hundreds of kids he's sired.

3 'The Book Thief'
The latest best-seller that will make for a hard sell to audiences is Markus Zusak's tome about an orphan (Sophie Nelisse) coming of age in Nazi Germany. Geoffrey Rush and Emily Watson play her foster parents, who are luckily two of the nicer Germans.

4 'The Armstrong Lie'
Last seen tackling WikiLeaks with "We Steal Secrets," absurdly prolific documentarian Alex Gibney takes on Lance Armstrong and his long history of denying he dopes before races.

5 'Go For Sisters'
It's been a while since John Sayles ("Lone Star") made a film many people paid attention to. Hopefully someone will check out his quite good latest: a character-driven mystery starring Lisa Gay Hamilton, Edward James Olmos and Yolanda Ross.

Must-see

1 'The Hunger Games: Catching Fire'
For her first (of three) sequels, funny-named archery enthusiast Katniss Everdeen (Jennifer Lawrence) is forced into a "special edition" of the tussle from the first, which is a clever way of not doing exactly the same thing again.

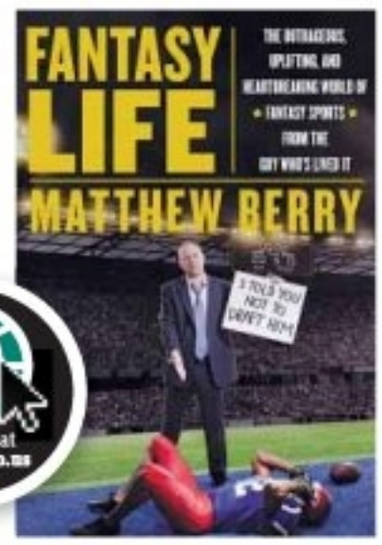
America's favorite fantasy



Lit. ESPN personality Matthew Berry says there is no escaping "fantasy island."

America's growing interest in fantasy sports might look like just an expansion of what it means to be an avid fan.

But according to fantasy guru Matthew Berry's new book "Fantasy Life: The Outrageous, Uplifting, and Heartbreaking World of Fantasy Sports from the Guy Who's Lived It," it's not just "geeks in black shirts in their mom's basement" playing in these leagues anymore — it's 13 percent of the population and growing. To what does he attribute this increasing fascination? The ESPN senior fantasy sports analyst says it's something that has to be experienced to be truly understood.

"It's like going to your first Bruce Springsteen concert. You can be a Springsteen fan and love his albums, but it's not until you've seen him up on stage ... that you can truly understand how awesome he is." That's high praise, but Berry's book makes a compelling case for the new American pastime.

Matthew Berry discusses his book Friday at 6 p.m. at the Brattle Theatre. / ESPN

"The craziest story I know is about this one soldier who was in Afghanistan on his fantasy draft day," says Berry. "There was only one place outside where he could get a connection, and a bomb went off 60 yards from where he was standing." The soldier was unhurt, but the story shows how a true fantasy fan will never miss draft day.

For most of us, the stakes will never get this high, but Berry promises there is plenty of fun to be had, even by the most casual fans.

Berry says ESPN is always trying to figure out ways to grow the industry, from including fantasy segments in "real" sports programs to ensuring that Web and mobile apps are easy to use and appeal to everyone from grandmothers to college girls, and even pro athletes themselves. "You can play fantasy anything," he says. "There are fantasy movie leagues where people win points depending on how successful the movies are. In Japan, fantasy sumo is huge. Any place where people can complete, there is an opportunity for fantasy."

Here comes the bohemian bride

Debut line. Mara Hoffman launches her first-ever bridal collection.

You may know designer Mara Hoffman for her colorful, tribal-inspired bathing suits or caftan-like dresses, which instantly transport you beachside in Tulum. The designer, known for her bohemian wears, recently launched a bridal collection perfect for the free spirit who wants to say "I do" barefoot in the sand or on a prairie somewhere.

Hoffman started the collection after several customers and friends special-ordered pieces for their big days, including jewelry designer Pamela Love, whose outdoor wedding was featured in Vogue last June.

More with Hoffman

How did you keep the price down?
Accessibility was a big deal, and offering the line direct through our website gave us a way of keeping control of the pricing.

How would you describe your bride?
I like to think of her as the spontaneous bride in the sense that she's not someone who's necessarily planning for a year and a half. She might be the runaway bride in the sense they get engaged and she's running off to the beach and needs something fantastic to wear. She's a little bit more laid-back, a true bohemian.

LAKSHMI GOWN $1,100

"We had so many requests, we thought it would be a nice thing to give to our customer at an affordable level — and really stay true to who our customer is. She's someone who isn't necessarily able to spend $5,000 on a dress," says Hoffman.

The designer and her team started researching prices in other affordable bridal markets, like J.Crew and Anthropologie's BHLDN line.

"We wanted to see what was out there and be able to offer more," she says.

The bridal line, titled Devotional, retails for between $300 and $1,700, and includes four gowns made from silk georgette and with intricate beadwork. There's also a bustier and long skirt set, a veil and, of course, two swimsuits perfect for those seaside nuptials.

'Let your geek flag fly'

Books. Nerds can ace the dating game too.

Behind the game controller, you're as brave as Link from "The Legend of Zelda," but on a date you're no more suave than Mario.

Self-proclaimed geek Eric Smith is helping geeks navigate the levels of dating in his new book, "The Geek's Guide to Dating." He's made it out alive, and has a fiancee to prove it.

"Just lay it all out there and be who you are," Smith advises daters. "Eventually you're going to find a person who appreciates that."

Smith's road to engagement wasn't easy. In 2011, he penned an essay about a terrible breakup where he sold the engagement ring he'd bought for his intended and bought a suit of Master Chief armor from "Halo." Geeks everywhere found it to be a suitable exchange; the essay quickly went viral. "It's probably the most popular thing I'll ever write," he says, jokingly.

Friends and family encouraged him to write more. "I wrote a couple of essays about video games and my love life and things like that," says Smith, who also co-founded the Philadelphia blog "Geekadelphia." Publishers at Quirk Books took notice, and the result is a dating manual — complete with 8-bit art— that helps Player One find that special Player Two.

Smith's best advice? "My favorite tip is to not be ashamed of anything; let your geek flag fly," he says. That said, Smith assures readers that your future Player Two doesn't have to share your nerdy interests. "It shouldn't be a deal breaker if they aren't into the same things you are," he says, adding that his fiancee isn't a gamer.

While his book — available Dec. 3 — breaks down every aspect of the dating game, from Facebook creeping to accessorizing, Smith's dating mantra is pretty simple: "I always tell my friends to just go for it. As geeks, we like to overthink things and lay out all of our moves. But as much as people like to call dating a game, it really isn't."

ANISA ARSENAULT
letters@metro.us

Smith's tips

Where to go on a first date

- Choose activities that let you learn about the other person.
- Bookstores or comic book stores work because they let you see what kinds of subjects a potential date is interested in.
- Used book shops are nice because the scent of old books is "romantic," Smith says.
- Record shops are fun because "if they see something they really like, it gives you a chance to be sweet and buy something," he says.

Do you suffer from pain after Shingles (PHN)?

The symptoms of PHN (postherpetic neuralgia) can be debilitating. The deep, burning pain and extreme skin sensitivity can greatly impact the quality of your life.

We are conducting a research study of a once daily, investigational form of pregabalin for the pain of PHN.

You may qualify for the study if:

- You are male or female, age 18 years or older
- You have experienced persistent pain for more than three months after the duration of an episode of Shingles (herpes zoster skin rash)
- Have not been treated with pregabalin during the last 30 days.

Qualified applicants will receive study medication and all study-related physical exams and laboratory tests at no cost.

Jobs. A day in the life of professional dog walker Marisa Fiumara

Fiumara is pictured here with the dogs who gave her business a name. / TOPHER COX

When it comes to jobs, dog walking can seem like a walk in the park. But ask a pro like Marisa Fiumara, who runs Boston-based dog walking and dog concierge business Stella and Stanley, which is named after Fiumara's German Shepherds, and she'll tell you that it's a huge responsibility — and takes more than a handful of treats to get right.

"This is an all-weather job; we are out there rain or shine, everyday," she says. "But I wanted to do something I loved and cared about."

Fiumara's day starts around 6 a.m., when she's up to take her own dogs out, and ends when she repeats the process for the late-night pee. In between, her day includes everything from vet appointments to puppy-proofing apartments, and several walks with several groups. Fiumara walks up to four dogs at a time, and that means working out who gets along.

"It's an art finding who works with who. When I do the initial interview, I try to figure out where they fit. I'll take them out with just one dog first and then maybe two so I don't overwhelm them, just see who they get along with."

Running a successful dog walking business doesn't just mean getting along with dogs; it requires people skills.

"I put a lot into client relations. I took care of a movie star's dogs while she was in town a few years ago" — sorry, Fiumara's not giving a name, but she's an A-lister. "She asked me to take care of them again. When clients come back, I know I'm getting it right."

LINDA CLARKE

Q&A

How do you find the right dog walker?

It has to be someone you know and trust. Don't just choose from Craigslist. Go with your gut instinct. Dog walkers have to be organized and responsible. Do they have bags, an extra leash? Do they know the dogs' names? You can't take phone calls and take your attention off the dogs. You have to watch other people, especially with children. Children can spook a dog. You have to be aware what sets them off. Dogs are cute but they are still wild animals, no matter how domesticated. People say they love dogs, but not everyone has this in them.

How much does a dog walker make?

Depending on how much they put into it, between $12,000 for basic walks, two to three hours a day, five days a week, and $50,000 for full-time work, including some sitting and shopping, etc. It is lucrative, but the good ones work hard and are dedicated to the dogs.

1 Ralph Lauren Dog Raincoat

Is it raining cats and dogs? If so, protect your little friend from the elements with this Ralph Lauren raincoat, which comes in classic sunshine yellow with a silk collar. The collar has a fancy tie-striped silk twill at the back, attached hood, adjustable snapped closure at the neck and adjustable snapped waistband. There's a discreet leash hole at the back of the neck, except for size XL. www.ralplauren.com, $66.50

2 Fab Dog Striped Scarf

This scarf is a great pick for your dog's winter accessory collection. It can be easily washed in the washing machine and can be used for a longer period. Donning the Fab Dog Striped Scarf will give your classy canine a complete makeover. Available in vibrant color combinations like pink and orange, and red and navy. www.wag.com, $20

3 The hoodie

Check out Etsy for a dozen different pet stores that specialize in winter coats and hoodies. This handmade, cotton hoodie is only $16.90 and promises warmth and style for your pet. www.etsy.com/shop/kelifastner, $16.90

4 Ruffwear Bark'n Boots

Engineered for winter weather, the Ruffwear Bark'n Boots Polar Trex Footwear for Dogs are designed to provide warmth and traction on snow and ice. The cam buckle ankle strap and cord loop keep these winter dog booties on Fido's feet while the three-layer laminated soft-shell uppers are water resistant to help keep paws warm. www.altrec.com, $67.95

5 Aokin Pet Umbrella

Rain? No problem. Try the pet umbrella to keep your dog dry. The umbrella's leash attaches easily and quickly to your pet's collar and includes a clear oblong arc trimmed with classic navy and green plaid. The umbrella keeps your pet dry and comfortable in rain, sleet or snow. www.aliexpress.com, $20.33

6 The Dog Dryer

The Puff-N-Fluff dog dryer is the easiest and safest way to get your dog fully dry, after being in the rain or snow, within minutes. Made by using a rectangle piece of material with four elastic leg holes, the dog's paws are placed through the openings, and the sides are brought together and easily fastened by a hook and loop. Pull the drawstrings to close the gap around the head and tail, and virtually any blow dryer can be attached to the flex-hose to let warm air circulate around your dog. It comes in all sizes, XS-L. www.thedog-dryer.com, $34.95-44.95

DID YOU KNOW?
Shedding

FISH & BONE
NO.4
Dogs and cats have two seasonal shedding cycles, Spring and Fall. Each time the old follicles are dropped to make room for a new coat appropriate for the coming season. But that doesn't have to mean tumbleweeds of fur throughout the house! Here's how to keep them at bay.
First consider the diet. An ideal base food is nutrient-dense, moisture-rich, minimally-processed, with quality proteins & fats, and little or no grain. This time of year especially, add 'good' fats to the bowl. We recommend rotating between Wholistic Pet Organics' Coconut Oil and Deep Sea Salmon Oil. Both will strengthen skin cells to retain the incoming fur & bring a soft shine. Each has different therapeutic benefits as anti-inflammatory, or anti-viral/anti-fungal, so with rotation your pet will get all these benefits over time. Bathe your dog once a month to remove dead hair. We love Mutt Nose Best U Itchy Puppy Shampoo & Conditioner, all natural and made in Maine.
Brush as often as you can, at least once/week, with a de-shedding tool. Brushing stimulates the oil glands & removes the dead fur.
Our customers love Furminator's line of grooming tools.
For more information visit us at the store or on our blog.
tip
Coconut oil is solid below 75 degrees. A spoonful makes a great treat or pill pocket, and you'll see a difference in softness & shine within a couple of days!

Canine couture

It's about that time of year again: when layering becomes second nature before leaving the house and that pair of not-so-cute (but properly insulated) boots become a staple addition to your everyday look. But, while we wrap ourselves in crocheted scarves and slip on gloves to take the dog out for a walk, it's important not to forget about our furry friends as the snow starts to fall. Keep your pets warm and happy this winter with some of these functional — and fashionable — accessories.

Fab Dog Wool Plaid Shearling Coat

Worried about protecting your dog as the winter chill sets in? The Fab Dog Wool Plaid Shearling Coat from Wag.com offers warmth and style on even the coldest days. The coat is made of premium quality fleece, which makes it warm and cozy. Its snug fit and neat stitching will comfort your pup all day. It has a hole for easy harnessing that prevents any sort of damage to the coat. www.wag.com, $56.00

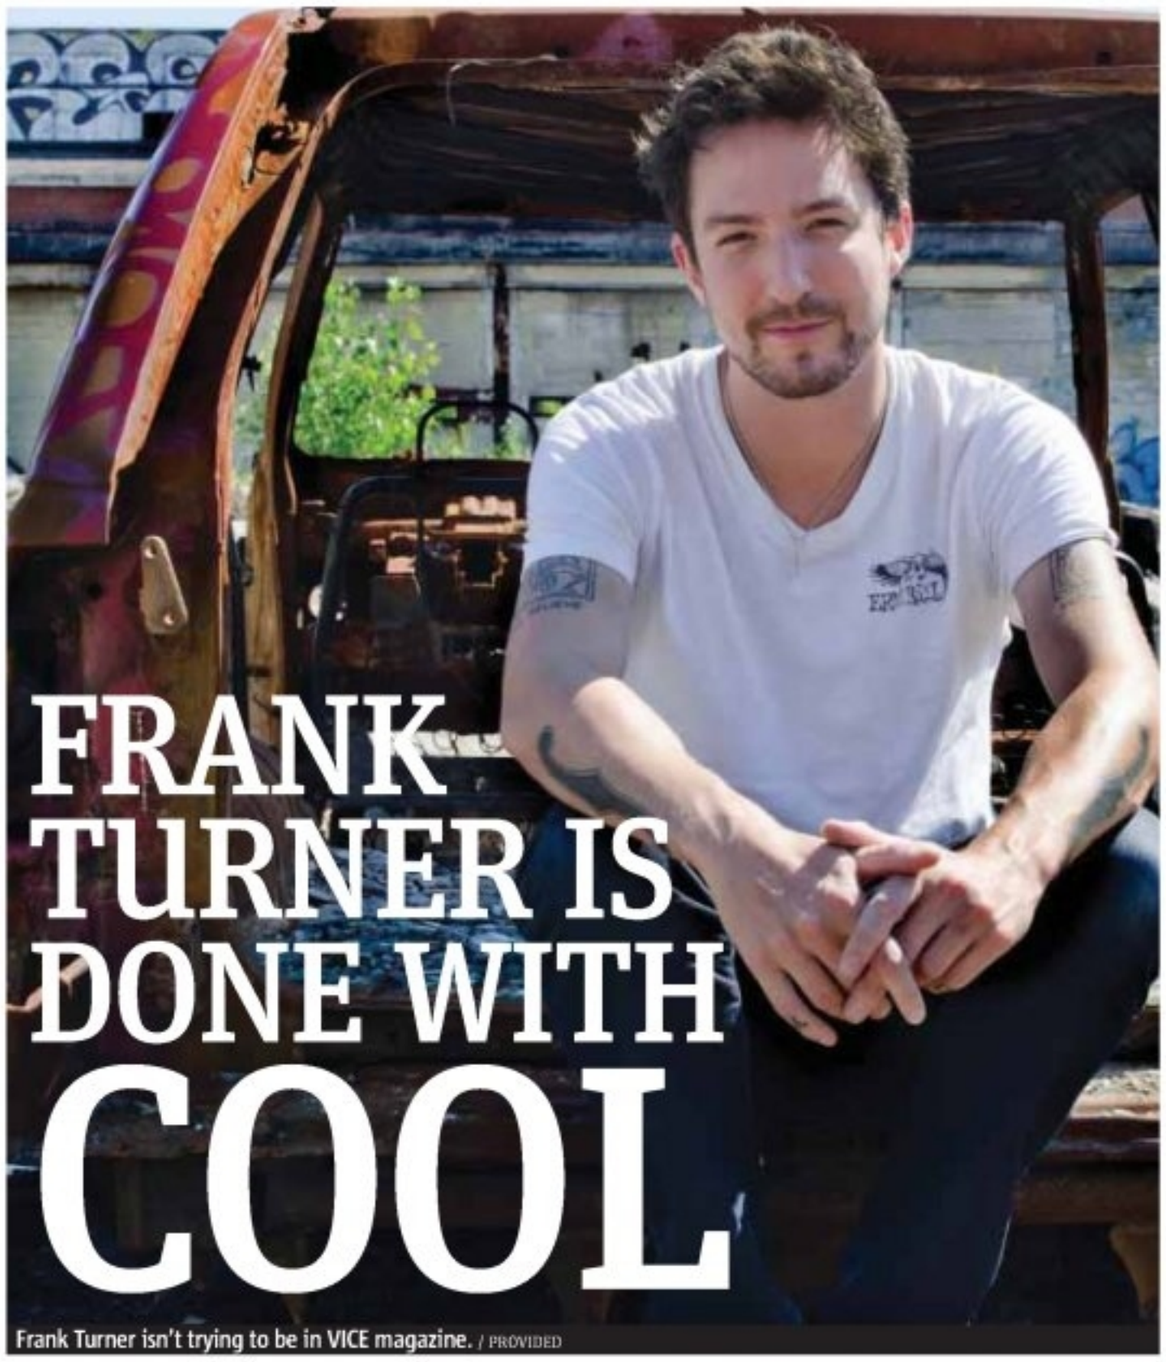
Folk. Former punk/hardcore artist says that he's never really been in the in-crowd.

FRANK TURNER IS DONE WITH COOL



Frank Turner isn't trying to be in VICE magazine. / PROVIDED

A solo, acoustic set at Newport Folk Festival is a far cry from playing the dank clubs of London's hardcore scene, but it's an evolution that, at 31 years old, actually came fairly naturally for Frank Turner.

Once a fixture on the punk and hardcore circuit with his band Million Dead — they split rather unceremoniously in 2005 — Turner is now better known as a folk artist. And, as unlikely a leap as it may seem, there's still an undeniably punk spirit in Turner's sound.

"Definitely, or at least I hope so," he says, when asked if he still identifies with those roots. "The thing is, if I wanted to completely ditch punk rock I'm not sure I could. Because the way I learned how to play the guitar, and sing, was kind of all in noisy, screaming, punk bands, and that comes across in what I do. I don't want to reject my past or disown anything in particular. I love punk rock records, and the ethos and ethics part of it is sort of how I go about my business."

It wasn't a completely effortless transition. "I certainly felt like I had an awful lot of learning to do when I first started playing acoustically and solo," he says. "Even at the most basic level, if it's just you on the stage, with one guitar, if you screw up then it's your problem. You can't blame it on the drummer or have a screaming war at Noise Fest to cover up your screw-up. It's very naked. But that's kind of why I like it so much, is that it feels almost 'punk,' in a way. It's totally raw and unguarded, and there are no excuses."

These days, Turner's music is marked by bare, almost poetic lyricism, which he makes no excuses about. In songs like "Recovery" (off this year's "Tape Deck Heart") he describes the redemptive journey up from rock bottom that anyone who's been close to addiction can relate to. It's a frankness that Turner says is integral to his relationship with music.

"Broadly, I enjoy honesty in music. That's a quality I look for in the music I listen to. Telling a story, I like to spin a yarn."

That honesty is the hallmark of Turner's songwriting, through which he spins tales of his own experiences ranging from the aforementioned struggle with substance abuse, to the death of a close friend (and more than one relationship) and the inexorable pull of home.

"When you're writing from personal experience, I don't think it's just reading from right out of your diary," he says. "You present things in such a way that there is potential for empathy from other people."

Still, he accepts that, in some circles, it's not that cool to be as unabashedly sincere as, he's the first to admit, he is. That said, he doesn't give a damn. On "Four Simple Words" he sings "Is anyone else sick of the music churned out by lacklustre scenesters from Shoreditch? / Oh, it's all sex drugs and sins, like they're extras from 'Skins' / But it's OK because they don't really mean it."

"One of the things that my music has never been in the U.K. — and I get the impression that it very briefly was with some hipster punks over here — is cool," he laughs. "I don't want to be in VICE magazine. It's just not my scene. I was a weird, awkward teenager. I don't want to play in a band now that I wouldn't have known about back then. Or playing the shows that I wouldn't have gone to."

"It's that kind of hipster, ironic detachment — it does my head in," he continues. "There have been times where I've been criticized, in the U.K. for being unironic. It just seems like a bizarre criticism to me for someone to say, 'man, that guy really means what he says.' I've never been popular with those kinds of people and that is fine with me."

On fan tattoos

"I've gone through a number of different emotions with that. When it first came along, I was a bit weirded out. Then I thought about it and, the thing is, you know, I've got plenty of band tattoos and lyric tattoos myself and I understand that motivation. But I guess I just don't automatically group myself in my head with the kind of bands that I think of in that way. I have a Black Flag tattoo, I don't think of myself in the same category as Black Flag. The portrait tattoos make me feel a little strange. I am not entirely sure how to respond when someone sort of cheerfully comes up to you and shows you picture of my face on their leg. What do I say, 'Thanks, I mean, cool?'"

This Brooklyn-based band features two former members of the regional reggae heroes John Brown's Body. Like that band, the music has a dank, horn-laden, reggae-like sound, but what's new here is that it's got a quirky, precocious pop vibe rivaling the compositional ambitions of Sufjan Stevens or the Polyphonic Spree. In this sense, you might say they're equal parts hipster and hippie. Really though, the only category we're sure they fit into is that of "good music."

This new supergroup — well, super-duo to be precise —consists of people you already know and have probably loved in their previous bands and projects. It's Boston alt-rock queen Juliana Hatfield and Nada Surf's Matthew Caws! Their music highlights their close male-female harmonies and projects a pretty mellow vibe, albeit somewhat uneasy beneath the surface — a classic 1990s mood, but one that never really goes out of style. This ensemble of Japanese taiko drummers doesn't just sit there and bang the drums — even though that would be good enough. But they fly around the stage at the same time, providing a visual spectacle to match the sonic, with more than 20 drummers, as well as cymbals and flutes. The effect is energizing, the enthusiasm contagious.

Comedian Chris Kattan was the resident spaz on "Saturday Night Live" in the late '90s and early '00s. His absurd characters, ranging from the chimp-man Mr. Peepers to the androgynous fashionista Mango, mixed pure surface silliness with a disconcerting, subversive undercurrent. His stand-up act, which includes inviting random audience members up to dance, continues his quest to spread the awkward love.

This is a truly strange Italian/American sci-fi curiosity from 1979, starring John Huston and a bunch of other random people. Its hallucinatory plot, involving a creepy girl with psychic powers and a pet hawk, a similarly creepy but apparently benevolent cult from outer space, and a lot of other incongruous cinematic tropes, must be seen to be believed.

Train Spotting: City Hall Plaza, Thanksgiving (and zombie) edition.

Is locally-grown produce more expensive than the bioengineered mutations available at corporate grocery stores? Probably a wee bit. Is it also significantly healthier and fresher? You bet! Is it worth the extra cash? That depends on how much you enjoy eating mutants. Fortunately for those who aren't so into that, but have a fondness for fruits and veggies, farmers markets can be accessed Tuesdays and Fridays at Copley Square and Mondays and Wednesdays at City Hall Plaza. Last Monday, we questioned proprietors Scott Hurwitz of Silverbrook Farm, a three-centuries-old Dartmouth-based institution, and Boston Public Market manger Shaq Jones regarding the joys and tribulations of urban farming.

The historical atrocities surrounding Thanksgiving: thoughts?
SH: You've got to remember, I work for a bunch of Quakers. They were legal to hunt up until 150 years ago. That's why Quaker meeting houses always had underground back doors.

How could anyone tell if they were shooting a Quaker instead of, um, a member of some other religion?
SH: Ah, what the hell? You just put a different hat on them, and you're fine.

Do you think your knack for growing your own food would help you survive a zombie apocalypse?
SJ: I'm a straight diva. I wouldn't die first. I know how to throw people under the bus. That's not the issue. I'm sure I could be the last person alive if I really wanted to, but running through a whole empty field. I'm just not for it. Worst case scenario, I'd become a zombie.

That might be fun.
SH: I just don't picture you eating brains.

Jones, right, is 'the vegetarian zombie.' / PROVIDED

SJ: I'd be the vegetarian zombie. I'd eat all vegetables and fruit. That's what happens to me anyway during the winter. Working on a farmers market tunes you. It switches up your whole diet, to the point where now I crave things when they come into season. This week, I'll be stocked up on Asian pears.

But if it came down to it, you'd be very selective about the type of person you ate?
SJ: Oh yeah.
SH: Asians! They might taste like the pears! [Shaq and Scott's nearby Asian co-worker audibly rolls her eyes] BARRY THOMPSON

Q&A

How would society change if everyone grew their own food?

SH: Not everyone could grow their own food. There isn't the ability to. We put our farm into a land trust, just so it won't ever be able to be used for anything other than farmland. But farms sell out all the time, and their land gets turned into condos. There are two things you always have to worry about: not enough room to plant food, and not enough room to put the dead people. That's where zombies come in handy.

LIQUID PHILANTHROPY: BARS RAISE MONEY FOR BARTENDER ALEX HOMANS

There's a reason they call it the hospitality industry. At its best, it's not just about providing food, drink and other creature comforts to guests, but also real life comfort. The latter is what bartender Alex Homans (a veteran of Russell House Tavern, Temple Bar and Backbar, among others) needs after suffering a serious bicycle accident in late October that will keep him out of work for an extended period. Like most members of the service profession, being unable to stand on your feet means being unable to pay your bills. To alleviate the hardship, Homans' industry friends have come together to help him get through the tough stretch with a series of fundraiser events and drink specials.

Homans was biking to work at Brookline's Fairstead Kitchen when he was struck by a vehicle, he explains, causing him to fracture a vertebra and separate his shoulder. The driver was cited on the scene by a police officer, he says, so he will likely be able to recoup his expenses from the driver's insurance, but that could take a long time. In the meantime, bars like Backbar ran some benefits this past weekend, for which bartenders throughout the area donated their time behind the bar mixing up a blue daiquiri special, the proceeds of which are being donated to Homans.

At Fairstead Kitchen they're serving a Vin L'Orange. Other bars with drink specials include Brick & Mortar and Flora in Arlington. / DEREK KOUYOUMJIAN

At his new home, they're running a housemade aperitif cocktail called Vin L'Orange, made with wine, brandy, oranges, sugar, cinnamon and vanilla. Profits from its sales will benefit Homans. Industry blog Server Not Servant is compiling a list of similar offerings.

"I was blown away," Homans. "I love what I do, I love the people that work alongside me, all the bars and restaurants. I never thought that they'd all get together and do something like that for me. It was completely humbling; I feel so grateful to work in the business and work with people that care about each other, and care about the health of their community and not just themselves. I don't know if I'll ever really be able to express my appreciation the way I want to, but once I'm able, I'll be donating as much as of my time and effort to them as I can."

One of the bartenders who chipped in at Backbar is Daren Swisher of jm Curley. "I have no doubt he'd be the first person to try to do something to help any of us if we were in a similar situation," Swisher says.

Wine pairings for Thanksgiving

Good guests bring a dish to a Thanksgiving dinner. Great guests bring a dish and a bottle of wine. But with so many options on the Thanksgiving table, which bottle is best? We picked some reasonably priced options that go with the most classic of dishes. And just in case you are tasked with only bringing a bottle, we have the ones that pair best with the star of the hour — roasted turkey.

Roasted butternut squash

Lucien Albrecht Crémant d'Alsace Brut
Newton Red Label Cabernet Sauvignon; $19
The sparkling Brut helps balance richer side dishes like squash or mashed sweet potato. If you like a nice red, the Newton Red Label Cabernet Sauvignon ($22) is made in America (how apt!) and sports layers of plum, white chocolate, vanilla and anise aromas perfect for root dishes.

Outside the box

Rekorderlig cider

It seems crazy, but not everyone loves wine or beer. The Rekorderlig Swedish Hard Cider is a refreshing, unique option. The pear option suits most holiday dishes.

Cranberry sauce

Pierre Sparr Crémant d'Alsace Rosé; $18
Pair this Rose (made with 100 percent Pinot Noir) with any savory fruit side dish you make – you can't go wrong with matching this with cranberry orange relish or a cranberry sauce with pecans.

Salad/green sides

Elena Walch Pinot Grigio 2012; $18
White wine often gets overlooked at the Thanksgiving feast for more robust red options. But this Pinot Grigio is an excellent aperitif wine — or pair it with a whole range of lighter side dishes such as green beans with sliced almonds or garlicky greens.

Ham

Apothic Dark; $14
The dark fruit flavors of this limited edition red blend includes blueberry and blackberry with notes of coffee and dark chocolate; it pairs well with the salty taste of a perfectly prepared ham.

Roasted Brussels sprouts

Trimbach Gewurztraminer 2011; $21
This is the perfect Thanksgiving wine for almost any dish on the table but it works particularly well with the turkey. The notes also pair nicely with roasted Brussels sprouts or roasted corn pudding with caramelized shallots.

Turkey time

Allegrini Valpolicella Classico 2011; $16
The easy drinking red wine from the northeastern region of the Veneto, in Italy, pairs well with just about anything on the table, from the white meat of the turkey to creamy mushrooms.

Strong cheeses

San Polo Brunello di Montalcino 2008; $80
This wine's elegance and depth of flavor make it a wonderful pairing for the darker meats, richer dishes and anything with mushrooms or truffles in it. It also pairs wonderfully with any dish that incorporates aged or stronger flavored cheese.

With dessert or as dessert

Jaillance Clariette de Die; $16
Fresh, lightly fizzy and fruit-driven, this wine is a refreshing sipper after a rich meal. Enjoy it as a liquid dessert, or pair it with Thanksgiving staples such as pecan pie, sweet potato pie and apple tarts.

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Look over your assets and start making changes that will boost your cash flow. Using your talents and skills in a unique fashion will lead to unusual prospects and partnerships.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
Keep your thoughts a secret. Dodging a sensitive situation will buy you time, allowing you to make personal changes that open up more options.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan 20.
Share your emotions and discuss matters that concern your home reputation and future status. Much can be accomplished if you are open about where your loyalty lies.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18.
Cover every angle and concentrate on what will bring you the highest return. Don't trust anyone to take care of matters that concern you personally. Live in the present, not the past.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
Make your move and don't look back. You've got what it takes to dazzle and deal with anyone who comes along. Romance will enrich your love life.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
Don't feel pressured to make a move or help someone who doesn't reciprocate. You may be a doer, but that is no reason to let anyone take advantage of you.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
Personal improvements will boost your ego and help you project a positive image that will attract interest. An agreement will ensure that you can accomplish your goals.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Look at every angle of a situation and consider all the possibilities that can develop. False hope or an unrealistic standpoint will lead to a big disappointment.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
A true assessment regarding your skills and abilities must be presented if you don't want to fall short when asked to perform. A change in your reputation or status is apparent.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
You may be enticed by something or someone unique, but problems will arise if you neglect your responsibilities.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
You'll gain respect if you offer your help, suggestions and expertise. The impression you make on someone in your life will strengthen your bond. Love is highlighted.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Not knowing which way to turn will leave you in an awkward position. Overreacting must not be allowed to result in you making costly move.

Letters

Metro should get a pat on the back

Re: 'Thank you, readers, for keeping Metro on top' (Metro, Nov. 19) Congratulations to you as well. Newspapers and magazines have to deal with increasing costs for newsprint, delivery and distribution along with reduced advertising revenues and declining readership due to competition from the Internet and other new information sources. I've been grateful that you have afforded me the opportunity to express my views via letters to the editor along with others who may have different opinions on the issues of the day. Patronize the advertisers; they provide the necessary revenues to help keep Metro free! Let them know you saw their ad. This helps keep our neighbors employed and the local economy growing. In the marketplace of ideas, let us hope our Metro continues to survive and prosper! With the costs of everything going up, I look forward to my free copy of Metro every morning.

LARRY PENNER, VIA EMAIL

Health is also employer's concern

Re: 'A weighty issue' (Metro, Nov. 19) I disagree with letter writer Tim Riker's response. There is no such evidence that overweight people can perform the same tasks as healthy, in-shape people. Many people are diagnosed with arthritis, a disease that still does not have a distinct cause. However, it is the obligation of the employees to notify their employer that they no longer can perform the tasks they stated they could perform in writing when they filled out an application. Healthy people should not share a burden, they have the right to work with people who are also healthy. An employer should have the right to address any health risks that might jeopardize the productivity of their workplace.

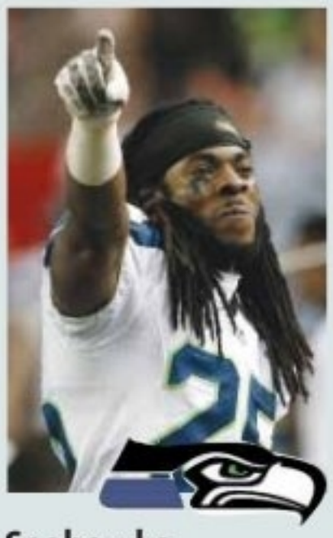
Find video and a recap of Wednesday night's Celtics-Spurs game: Metro.us/sports.

NFL power rankings | by Mike Greger

No. 1



Seahawks (10-1)

OK, now Seattle has some weapons. The return of Percy Harvin, who had a 58-yard, game-changing kick return, only increased Seattle's dominance over the NFL. With Russell Wilson and Marshawn Lynch leading the way, it's going to be tough to unseat the kings of the Pacific Northwest.

No. 2

Broncos (9-1)

Three sacks on Alex Smith and a goal-line stand were as important as anything Peyton Manning did against KC.

No. 3

Chiefs (9-1)

It's funny we're talking about an ineffective offense with Andy Reid, but KC needs to start putting up numbers on that side of the ball.

No. 4

Saints (8-2)

One thing you thought you'd never hear: New Orleans needs a win this week to fend off the pesky Panthers for first place.

No. 5

Panthers (7-3)

They are up to six straight wins, including back-to-back upsets over the 49ers and Patriots. Impressive stuff.

No. 6

Colts (7-3)

The trade for Trent Richardson may have been pointless given the way Donald Brown ran last Thursday.

No. 7

Patriots (7-3)

You can't cry over noncalls and the Pats have already moved on. But the Panthers proved you can throw on that secondary, even Aqib Talib.

No. 8

Bengals (7-4)

Wow, if Cincy can win a divisional game where Andy Dalton struggles then they can never be counted out. Never, James Harrison.

No. 9

49ers (6-4)

The Niners are in must-win mode after dropping two-straight. Luckily for them, they now draw the Redskins.

No. 10

Lions (6-4)

The Steelers may have laid out the blueprint for slowing Matthew Stafford and Megatron last Sunday.

No. 11

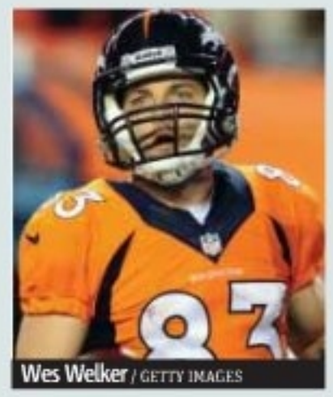
Bears (6-4)

In the year of the backup quarterback, Josh McCown just may be the best second-stringer around. They're at the Rams Sunday.

Best of the rest

- No. 12 Cardinals (5-4) The Cardinals just keep winning despite no real running attack.
- No. 13 Eagles (6-5) If the Birds keep winning, LeSean McCoy can wipe himself with any team's towel he wants to.
- No. 14 Ravens (4-6) Ray Rice busted out with the big day his fantasy owners had been dreaming of for months.
- No. 15 Dolphins (5-5) Miami had arguably the biggest win of Week 11 as they remain alive for a playoff spot in the AFC.

Word on Welker



Wes Welker / GETTY IMAGES

Brady has no doubt on Welker

Questions remain as to whether or not Broncos receiver Wes Welker will play against his old team Sunday night after suffering a concussion against Kansas City. Welker's old quarterback, Tom Brady, is one who has no doubt about his status for this weekend's mega-showdown, however.

"I've been around [Welker] long enough to know what he's all about," Brady told WEEI this week. "He loves playing football and if there's a chance for him to play, especially coming back here, he's definitely going to be out there. I've got no question about that." MATT BURKE

According to WFAN Radio, Rodriguez angrily stormed out of his arbitration hearing with MLB Wednesday morning, calling the proceedings a "farce." MARK OSBORNE

DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE WHO SUFFERS FROM SUDDEN URGES TO URINATE AND INCONTINENCE?

If the answer is yes,

We're conducting a clinical research study of an investigational combination of two approved study drugs for overactive bladder. Each of the study drugs works in a different way to each other, so the investigational combination is being evaluated to see if it may offer additional relief the patient is looking for Participants will receive, at no cost, study-related care, monitoring, and study drug.

If you qualify and complete the study you could be compensated up to $350 for your participation.

Are you or a loved one at risk for a dangerous healthcare-associated infection commonly know as C.diff?

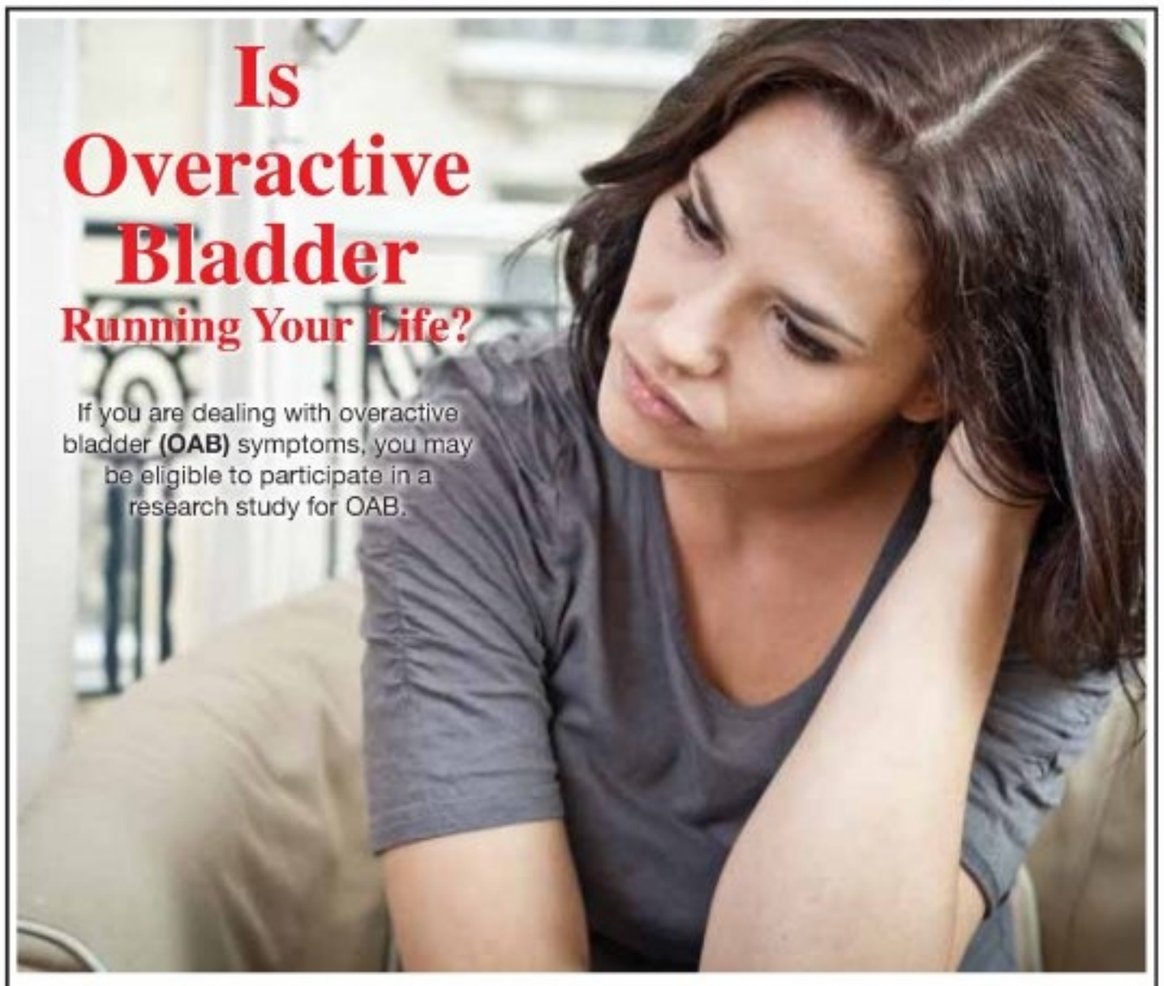
Clostridium difficile infection (CDI) symptoms range from mild diarrhea to life-threatening bowel disease and often include dehydration, abdominal pain and spasms. Volunteers are needed for a research study evaluating the effects of an investigational vaccine for the prevention of CDI episodes in at-risk individuals.

This study is being conducted by Dr. Carolyn Alonso and is taking place at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center

Individuals who are age 50 or older and planning hospitalization of more than 72 hours for surgical procedures and/or who have had at least two hospital stays, each lasting more than 72 hours, and have received systemic antibiotics in the past year, may qualify to participate.

To learn more and find out if you or a loved one are eligible to participate, Call Dr. Alonso at (617) 667-8266 or visit www.Cdiffense.org.

Is Overactive Bladder Running Your Life?



If you are dealing with overactive bladder (OAB) symptoms, you may be eligible to participate in a research study for OAB.

Qualified participants must be at least 18 years old, and have experienced OAB symptoms, such as a strong, sudden urge to urinate or the need to urinate frequently for at least 6 months. Qualified participants will receive investigational study drug or placebo (inactive pill) and study-related care at no cost. Compensation for time and travel may be provided.

On Oct. 16, Jimmy Kimmel told 4 kids that killing all Chinese is "an interesting idea."

He further asked the kids,

"Should we allow the Chinese to live?"

Racism, hatred and violence are not funny to joke with kids.
Kids should be influenced by love and tolerance.

So far, no one has been held accountable for this segment aired.
Instead of giving sincere apologies, ABC and Kimmel backdated and changed press releases to "apologize."

We demand a sincere public apology and someone must be held responsible for this.

ESPN fired Anthony Federico and suspended Max Bretos, Food Network fired Paula Deen, MSNBC just suspended Alec Baldwin over inappropriate speeches. We want to see ABC making the right move.

We have organized nationwide protests. Now we are ready to boycott Disney/ABC worldwide.
